HICKMAN, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1915

Number 26

IS SENATOR FROST TO BE "DARK HORSE?"

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 11.—The fact that State Senator W. A. Frost of Graves county, the prohibition leader in the last legislature, has not been seen around any political gathering since his nomination, which was equivalent to an election, is causing some people to wonder whether he is the mysterious "dark horse" being groomed by the "state-wid-ers" to trot out for president pro tem. If there is any chance to organize the upper branch over the liberal element committed to the integrity of the county unit law and against any further tinkering with the liquor laws, Senator Frost is generally counted as a supporter of Senator R. H. Scott, of Paducah, for temporary presiding officer of the senate.

SPARE THE PHEASANT.

Hunter! Watch out for the pheasant! These birds are lurking in many localities and if you by mere accident or otherwise cut down one of these birds, you will suffer the course of the law and a heavy penalty will be imposed upon all who violate the law. These pheasants have only been in Fulton county less than a year and are multiplying rapidly. They are under the protection of the Fish and Game laws of Kentucky for three years and the old birds and their young are both heavily protected. Hunter, spare the pheasant!

It is said that one thousand able men and brave Kentuckians attended the inauguration for the purpose of being assured by Gov. Stanley that they should be appointed to some good, fat office, and it is also said that 999 of them returned home sadder, poorer, and wiser men.—Calvert City Times.

As the style makers have decreed short skirts again, there are some of the girls who must economize on candy and spend ten cents on a box of shoe blacking.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Skeen, Miss Virginia Whayne and Mrs. Lacy Mott Miller motored over from Fulton Friday.

E. C. CARTER AT REST. WAS PIONEER CITIZEN.

E. C. (Uncle Lum) Carter, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Fulton county, died at his home six miles east of Hickman Thursday night at nine o'clock, after a two weeks illness of pneumonia. Mr. Carter was born, reared and made his home on the farm on which he died, and was the last of his generation of the family. He was born in 1834, and lacked only two months of reaching his 82d year.

Surviving Mr. Carter is his wife (nee Mrs. Mollie Mills) and one daughter, Mrs. Annie Turner, of Cotton Plant, Ark.

Deceased led a quiet, industrious life; always a farmer, except the years he spent in the cause of the Confederacy, in which capacity he served with distinction. He was a member of Henderson's Cavalry Brigade, and was invariably detailed by his captain to execute the most perilous tasks, where undaunted bravery and trustworthiness were required. He was ultimately mustered out of the service at Vicksburg.

For something like 53 years, Mr. Carter was a member of the Masonic order. The degrees were conferred on him in "an old Masonic hall beside the big road, in the vicinity of Cayce." This building has been gone for many years—and even its site has been forgotten. This lodge's membership went to Cayce in later years and Mr. Carter placed his membership with the others there, remaining with them until his death. He was also assessor of Fulton county for something like 20 years, making a fine, conscientious officer. It has been about a quarter of a century since he left this office. All the while since, up to last year when he resigned because his hearing became defective, he was a member of the county's Board of Equalization. He was also a consistent, model member of the Mt. Zion Methodist church for many years and his loss will be felt keenly by the congregation.

Funeral services were held at Mt. Zion church Friday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. H. A. Butts, a former pastor there, conducting the service. After the service,

Filling the Stockings

Esq. R. A. Browder, of Fulton, addressed the large gathering with a beautiful tribute to the life of his fellow comrade—both in times of peace and times of war. Services at the grave were in charge of the Masonic order, of which he was a valued member.

Mr. Carter was in every sense a fine citizen. He was charitable, broad-minded, sensible, industrious and honorable. We are sorry that he is no longer with us.

511 PARDONS ISSUED BY GOV. MCCREARY.

During his term as governor, J. B. McCreary, issued 511 pardons.

The ancient and honorable custom of "totin' a pistol," coming in conflict with a drastic statute, providing jail imprisonment and disfranchisement for two years, came in for most consideration at his hands, and during his term as Governor he has remitted the jail sentence and the disfranchisement penalty in 145 cases.

In nearly every instance the victim of the statute, was a "member of one of the most prominent" families in the community, and sometimes there was more than a hint of somebody getting even by causing the arrest.

Next in order comes manslaughter, with sixty-seven pardons in the list.

MALE COURT REPORTER.

Hub Haskins has been appointed official court reporter for the First Judicial District by Judge Bunk Gardner. He succeeds Miss Cora Moorehead, who was not an applicant for reappointment. Owing to the nature of some of the testimony. This is really not a lady's job.

The A. E. Anderson Tailoring Co., of Chicago, will incorporate in January, and have signified their intention of making D. N. McDermott, of Clinton, and who is well known in Hickman, a partner. As an earnest of their purpose and as a mark of their appreciation of his 12 years of service they have given him $2500 worth of stock. Verily, it pays to stick to one's job.

There is a widespread belief that Dad wants for Christmas some fancy work with a lot of ribbons and silk embroidery, when what he really desires is a good neat and serviceable negligee shirt, cob pipe or a pair of socks.

ANOTHER NEGRO KILLED. SLAYER MAKES ESCAPE.

What has become to be kind of a fortnightly killing occurred with wonted regularity Sunday night, when Will Locke shot and killed Looerlock Reed, both negroes.

The killing took place on the farm of W. C. Tipton, near the Tennessee line, in the vicinity of Phillippy. Two shots from a pistol did the deadly work. Locke made his escape into Tennessee, and Sheriff Huddleston, who was called, had to let the slayer go, being out of his jurisdiction. Reports of the affair were lacking in stating the cause of the tragedy.

Will Locke is described as a hot 26 years old, light brown, weight about 195, 5 feet and nine inches high, and wore a light cap and coat when last seen.

According to or reckoning, this is the 15th victim of gun or knife in Fulton county since Aug. 7th; an average of almost one homicide per week.

BARDWELL SCHOOL IS DESTROYED BY FIRE.

The Bardwell graded and high school building was destroyed by fire early Friday morning. The brick walls are still standing, but are in badly damaged condition. The fire occurred before the students assembled and there were no accidents. The loss is $10,000.

John W. Turk left Monday for Rochester, Minn., for the purpose of consulting Mayo Brothers, the eminent surgeons, relative to a surgical operation. Mr. Turk for several years has had trouble with his liver which was inactive and it was to determine upon the necessity for an operation that he went to Rochester. He was accompanied by his son, Morris.—Carlisle Co. news. Mr. Turk is head of the Turk-Wilson Wholesale Grocery Co., of Hickman.

EARTHQUAKE FELT.

Tuesday between 12:30 and 1 o'clock earthquake tremors were felt by many people in Clinton. The motion seemed to be from north to south and was sickeningly perceptible to all who were in their houses. Windows rattled and for a few seconds things were truly "Shaky."—Clinton Gazette.

An earthquake shock was felt at Bardwell at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday. The seismic disturbance was heavy and caused the kitchen flue at W. B. Fisher's residence to topple from its foundation.—Carlisle Co. News.

Union City was considerably shaken Tuesday 12:30 p. m. by an earthquake. The shock was greater perhaps than any felt here for a great many years. The windows and dishes rattled and many people were considerably alarmed.—Union City Commercial.

An earthquake shock was felt in Fulton about one o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Houses trembled as with a chill and some of our citizens felt impelled to run out into the streets. No damage was done.—Fulton Wireless.

A distinct earthquake shock lasting about 15 seconds was felt here Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. The shock was very strong and caused some uneasiness among a number of people.—Lake Co. News.

A violent earthquake which continued fully 30 seconds, was felt here last Tuesday at 12:45 o'clock. The quake while it did no damage, rocked many buildings and was accompanied by a rumbling.—Ballard Yeoman.

A distinct shaking and trembling of the earth was felt here Tuesday afternoon about 12:40. The tremor lasted several seconds. The earthquake shock was sufficient to shake buildings, rattle windows and dishes. Persons sitting in stores rushed to the streets when the building began to tremble.—Arlington Courier.

PROPERLY BAKED HAMS.

An old ham is best, but any thoroughly smoked, sound ham will do, writes Martha McCulloch Williams. Scrape it all over with a blunt-edge knife, then sprinkle well with a good washing powder and scrub in tepid water with a coarse cloth. Wring the cloth dry and wipe the ham, then rinse it in clear cold water and put it to soak over night. The next morning scrape it afresh if any superfluous matter has been loosened, rinse, and put it, skin side down, to cook in cold water, having a rack or plate in the bottom of the boiler to prevent scorching. Bring the ham to a brisk boil, then throw in a pint of cold water and let it stand two or three minutes; skim off the scum, then throw into the pot a dozen whole cloves, as many allspice and black peppercorns, a small pod of red pepper, slit lengthwise, and a blade of mace. Watch closely, and when boiling begins lessen the heat so that there will be bare simmering. The water must stand two inches above the meat—fill the boiler up as it wastes away. Keep on the lid, but loosely, and let the ham simmer until it is very tender—the time depends upon the age, weight and hardness of the ham. When the haunch bone shows a little through the meat the ham is likely to be done. Let it cool in the water in which it was boiled, take it out, drain well and trim off the rusty fat from the edges, and a little of the smoke darkened flesh underneath. (The hock had better be saved off before boiling, but if that has not been done, loose the projecting bones and cut to neat end.) Skin carefully, then stick all over the fat portion whole cloves in a lozenge pattern, after which dust thickly with black pepper and paprika, sprinkle lightly with soft sugar, and fit the ham into a deep agate or earthenware vessel. Pour in sound claret or sweet cider and let it soak six hours. Then put on a low rack in an agate pan, pour the soaking liquor around and bake very slowly from one to two hours, according to size. Baste with the liquor in the pan two or three times each half hour; as the liquor evaporates add either cold water or more wine or cider. If the ham is very fat cool the pan after taking it up, and remove most of the grease on top; then add a dash of boiling water, a light seasoning of herbs and ten drops of onion juice; cook for three minutes, stirring constantly, and then pour into your gravy boat. Pass with the ham; else use the savor stews and minces.

It is, perhaps, worth while to add that in judging a ham, dry, black-green mold upon the flesh side is ranked by epicures the hallmark of excellence, highly desirable.

To approximate fairly the famous French concoction, jambon au mader, you should pour the boiling water off the ham while it is still hot, after the ham is done, then let it simmer for an hour in enough of either claret or cider to float it, turning the ham from time to time and letting it cool in the liquor.

County School Notes

By Miss Virginia Laton
County Supt.

The entertainment at Fair View last Friday evening was quite a success and a nice sum of about $15 was raised for the benefit of the school. This district has made several improvements this term, including the fencing of the school grounds. The attendance has been unusually good.

The percentage of attendance based upon the census in our graded school districts for the past month was as follows:
Fulton... .86
Hickman... .70
Crutchfield... .6

Rosewell has enrolled 83 pupils this term. The average attendance for the past month was 65. Sylvan Shade has enrolled 71 pupils with average attendance of 56 pupils for the past month. These are our two largest rural schools.

In a large number of our districts many of the children drive to school during bad weather. For the past two years the school board has furnished the material for stables wherever needed, provided the district would build same.

Island No. Eight is adding to the district library.

Roper district is arranging to purchase some good pictures for the school with the funds raised at the recent box supper.

HELPING THE NEEDY.

Rev. R. C. Douglas, of the First Methodist church, has designated next Sunday, the 19th, as "Home Mission Sunday," and makes an appeal to his congregation to make contribution to this cause. Dr. Douglas is right; home mission needs attention and the demand is not going to be over-subscribed. Dimes count—but drop in a few dollars and watch the fund swell. We would hesitate about expressing our opinion in print, of that Christian community which would be guilty of letting Old Santa miss the homes of some little tots—poor, innocent, expectant—while the tender flower and pride of aristocracy is surfeited with Christmas joy. A tin horn and a sack of candy will work wonders in the childish heart. Slap down a piece of money for this cause—our churches and charitable organizations will do the rest. The devil is just waiting for the chinchy, old grouch, who is too tight to help the poor at our own door—but we're glad this unvarnished truth doesn't apply to YOU. Its the fellows who are not going to find themselves in Abraham's bosom, etc.

Courier's Home Circle

The Week Before Christmas.

It is the week before Christmas. The center of American thought is not now far away but is centered in each American home. It glows about father and mother and brother and sister and shines with brighter radiance, for it is the self-centered thought of love. The very air surcharged with kindness to the others. All the thoughts of this week will be about what Mary will be most pleased with and how happy mother will be when she sees that nice—but that's telling and half the pleasure comes for the concealment. Half the good of giving comes from keeping the left hand from knowing what the right hand is before Christmas is educational to the soul and heart. The heart begins to sprout at Thanksgiving and it swells until the week before Xmas when it is ready to burst out into full bloom from the accumulated sap of human kindness by which it has been fed. The week before Christmas has never had its dues. The brightest week before Christmas that ever happened was some twenty or fifty years ago—it is tedious to count dates. You remember all about it. You were a little thing, but you never in after life were quite so important to yourself. There were whisperings which ceased when you entered the room and when you woke up about midnight you found the lamp still burning and your mother still up and working on something that she put under the chair when you turned over in your bed. The old turkey gobbler in the pen was gobbling all day long to his former associates on the outside and eating corn with a gluttony which was to bring its own recompense. You found out for the first time that the business world had been working overtime all year especially to stock up on Christmas gifts for boys and girls. You had your own gifts for the others hidden where even one of Poe's wonderful detectives could not have found them—in the middle of the woodpile or hung down in the unused stock wall in the field. There is never a week before Christmas to equal those that came then.

Useless Giving.

There is a marked return this year to the real and original spirit of Christmas. People have banded themselves together into societies for the prevention of useless giving. This does not mean that the splendid custom of exchanging gifts with loved ones and friends is to be discontinued or discouraged in the least. It simply means that people are putting more love, and less money into their Christmas packages; that they are cutting out the perfunctory giving to people from whom they may possibly receive a present and whom they give a present simply to be on the safe side. There is none of the real spirit of Xmas in this. Every gift made at this time should carry the heart with it. A gift which is made to impress somebody with our ability to afford things, or that is sent out simply to offset some gift that may be received, is simply an abuse of the most gracious custom and the most blessed day. People are turning time back a few centuries and remembering that Christmas is a day in honor of Him who went about doing good and that a real Christmas gift should carry with it the spirit of Him who gave Himself with every word and deed. This is the checks that has long been needed to an abuse of a custom which young and makes us remember, keeps the world perennially just before it is too late, that it doesn't matter half so much how wealthy we are as how many friends we have and how well contented we are with our lot, however humble it may be.

Christmas tide has a twofold interest, a material and a spiritual. Some love it because it comes "But once a year, and when it comes it brings good cheer," others, because it is preeminently the season of universal reconciliation of "Peace on earth and good will toward men." Families may be scattered during the rest of the year, but at this time their members strive to re-unite, and, where this is impossible, the exiled ones turn their faces longingly towards hearth and home.

All the world keeps Christmas Day. From the land of the midnight sun to the sunny south of perpetual summer is a far cry. But in the long distance there is no land where Christmas is not kept. Its celebration is a part of the universal history of the human race. Whatever may have been its origin and whatever peculiarities may have gathered about it in its adaption to different people and different circumstances, it is to us Americans today a practically national feast.

To keep it was at one time, and in our own part of the country, it is true, was a penal offense. It was thought to savor of prelaty and to foster unpleasant memories of political servitude. But it has grown with our growth and the broadmindedness of the American people is seen at its best in the hearty commemoration of the nativity of the Christ from year to year.

MAKING OUR OWN TOYS

No Scarcity of Gifts Because of War

BECAUSE of the European war there has been considerable comment to the effect that there will be a dearth of Christmas toys this year, since the toy sources of France and Germany will not be available to American children. French dolls have been the standard during at least two generations, and Nuremberg, Germany, is famed throughout the world as a toy center.

It must not be supposed, however, that little girls will have to go without dolls this year. Several manufacturers in the United States are turning out dolls by the thousands and they are of the very best type. One large factory in Philadelphia is making, under special processes, a type of indestructible doll from basswood, which is a light and easily worked material and is not likely to split or break. Those who have made a study of this manufacture, in connection with the study of the wood-using industries of the state of Pennsylvania, predict that dolls of the type made by this and other similar factories can gain first place for America in this branch of manufacture. Thus, made of different material. Rocking horses are usually made of white ash.

In the native forests, basswood occurs sparingly and very seldom in groups or in solid stands. In the lake states in particular it is sawed incidentally with other timber, but the logs are usually kept separate and generally sawed in accordance with standing orders from special industries. It is utilized for many other products besides toys, because it has qualities which fit it for a wide range of uses. It is one of the softest of the so-called hardwoods, it lacks taste and odor, is very easily worked, does not warp or check badly, is tough and takes paint very well. It is one of the woods preferred for boxes to contain food products likely to be contaminated by the tastes or odors which might be derived from other woods. For the same reasons it finds considerable use in the manufacture of kitchen woodenware. It is in some demand as a material for house finish and a great deal of it goes into the unseen parts of furniture and musical instruments. Other important uses are for trunks, picture frames and excelsior.

In farmers' woodlots, in particular, it is a tree which should be favored, because it is a fairly rapid grower, is free from defects and is usually the new trade slogan, "Made in the U. S. A." will have a direct bearing in shifting the center of doll manufacture from Europe to America.

The following toys are now made in this country from American woods: Toy animals, blocks, cannon and forts, children's chair, circus sets, dolls, doll furniture, games, Christmas tree holders, swing jumpers, children's pianos, pastry sets, babies' play yards, toy shooting galleries, hobby horses, pop guns, toy wagons, toy autos and wheelbarrows. Basswood is the principal material for wooden toys and for wooden parts of metal toys. The basswood doll, in particular, is unique and ingenious. All parts of it are made of wood and are artistically carved and enameled in color. It is difficult to tell that it is made of wood when it is finished. The various parts of the body are joined with steel bands which not only give great flexibility and freedom of movement, but together with the wood make the doll practically indestructible.

Next to basswood, sugar maple, beech, birch and white pine are the principal woods used for toys, although elm, oak, chestnut, ash, yellow poplar and others enter into toy manufacture. Pennsylvania, which stands first among the states in toy manufacture, alone uses the equivalent of nearly 6,500,000 board feet of timber for toys, with a total value of $182,000 each year. The total amount of wood used annually in the United States for toy manufacture is nearly 29,000,000 feet, and the principal toy manufacturing states after Pennsylvania are, in order, Wisconsin, Maine, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Vermont, Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

Basswood is the favorite for such toys as toy animals, boats, dolls, circus sets and children's pianos. Blocks and dolls' furniture and toy vehicles are generally made of white pine. Stick horses, with a horse's head and a stick to ride upon, a more pretentious variation of the old-fashioned broom horse, are likely to be made of white pine, although the stick head may be salable. In selling this tree from a woodlot, the department of agriculture advises that it should be held for special prices and not sold in a lump with others.

Basswood has several advantages as a standing tree in the woodlot. In the first place, its blossoms furnish a considerable source of honey which is always in good demand, and when the tree is cut it readily regenerates itself from sprouts, the best of which should be favored in reproducing the stand.

Our Christmas Customs.

Most of the Christmas customs in America have been transplanted from Europe: Our Christmas tree comes from Germany, our Santa Claus from Holland, the Christmas stocking from Belgium or France, while "Merry Christmas" was the old English greeting shouted from window to street on Christmas morning.

The Optimistic Note.

It is a time for joy and gladness and good cheer, for this old world, with all its faults, is on its way towards the kingdom of heaven, and the omnipotence of love assures its getting there. Some time every day will be the best of Christmas, every place its altar of observance, and every soul be transformed into the Christ of his environment.—Universalist Leader.

Remember the days when you were little, and plan your Christmas accordingly.

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY

By GEORGE BARR
M'CUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark," "Truxton King," Etc.

Copyright, 1915, by George Barr McCutcheon.

"You will be paid in cash, Mr. Smart, the instant the deed is transferred," he said coldly.

I followed him to the top of the stairs which descended to the basement of the castle. It was rather significant that he elected to explore the lower regions first of all.

"I shall accompany you," said I deliberately.

A faint scowl came into his face. He eyed me fixedly for a moment, then shrugged his shoulders and said that his only desire was to avoid putting me to any unnecessary trouble. If I cared to come he would be more than grateful.

"It isn't necessary to visit the cellars, Saks," he said to the architect. "Ample time for that sort of rummaging. I particularly want your opinion on the condition of the intersecting walls on this floor and above. My scheme of improvement, Mr. Smart, contemplates the enlargement of these halls by throwing them into one."

"A very simple process," said I. "If the whole structure doesn't topple down upon your heads while you're about it."

"I shall contrive to save my scalp, Mr. Smart, no matter what happens. It is very precious to me."

CHAPTER XXV.

I Burn a Few Bridges.

WE went over the castle rather hurriedly, I thought, but he explained that Saks merely wanted a general idea of the structure; he would return another day to make a careful inspection.

"I dare say you are surprised that I should be willing to pay double your original price for Schloss Rothhoefen," he ventured, pausing in the corridor to light a cigarette. We were on our way to the top of the east wing.

"Oh, no," I said calmly. "I am aware that treasure is buried here. As a matter of fact, I've tried to unearth it myself, but without success. I wish you better luck."

"Thanks," said he laconically, after the first swift glance of inquiry. "It is doubtless a fairy tale, handed down by tradition. I take no stock in it. My principal object in acquiring Rothhoefen is to satisfy a certain vanity which besets me. I have it on excellent authority that my ex-father-in-law—the man Titus, you know—talks of buying the property and performing the stupendous, characteristic American feat of removing it, stone and timber, just as it is, to his estate north of New York city. No one but a vulgar, purse proud American would think of doing such a thing."

The news staggered me. Could there be anything in what he said? If it was true that Jasper Titus contemplated such a quixotic move there could be but one compelling force behind the whim—sentiment. But not sentiment on the part of Jasper Titus.

"I cannot believe that he considers doing such a thing," I said, rather blankly. "You see, if any one should know, I am that one. He has not approached me, of that you may be sure."

He did not appear to be interested.

"My information is not authoritative, Mr. Smart," said he. "It came to me through my representatives who conferred with his lawyers a fortnight ago in regard to certain difficulties that had existed between us. From what they were able to gather, the idea has taken root in the old man's head. Now, I want to buy this place for no other reason than to tell him that he hasn't enough money in his possession to purchase it from me. D'you see? Vanity, you may call it, as I do, but it pleases me to coddle it."

Very thoughtfully I strode along beside him. Would I be serving the countess ill or well by selling the place to Tarnowsky? It was her whim, of course, and it was a foolish one.

"Suppose that he offered you twice what you are to pay me for the place," said I, struck by a sudden thought.

He laughed easily. "You will not, it seems, acquit me of cupidity, Mr. Smart. I should not sell to him under any consideration. That is final. Take it or leave it."

By this time we were in the rooms once occupied by the countess. He glanced about the apartment carelessly. "Deserted, I observe," he remarked with a queer smile.

My heart almost stood still. "Eh? What do you mean?"

"If I am not mistaken, these are the rooms once occupied by your valet's wife. Am I right?"

I stammered myself. "She has gone away," I said. "Couldn't stand the climate."

"I see," said he, but he was still smiling. "How does your valet stand it?"

"Nicely," said I, with a conscious blush.

"I mean the separation, of course."

"Certainly! He is used to it."

"Isn't it rather odd that he should still think she is here in the castle?"

"Does he?" I murmured.

"I inquired for her when I encountered him downstairs. He said she was quite well this morning, except for a headache."

"She is subject to headaches, I believe," said I, with the utmost nonchalance. He lifted his right eyebrow slightly, but said no more on the subject.

A pile of rubbish lay heaped in one corner of the room, swept up and left there by the big Schmicks to await the spring housecleaning season, I presume. Tarnowsky at first eyed the heap curiously, then rather intently. Suddenly he strode across the room and gingerly rooted among the odds and ends with the toe of his highly polished boot.

To my horror a dilapidated doll detached itself and rolled out upon the floor, a well remembered treasure of Rosemary's and so unique in appearance that I doubt if there was another

In the world like it. Indeed, I have a distinct recollection of being told that the child's father had painted in the extraordinary features and had him self decorated the original flaxen locks with singular stripes of red and white and blue, a sardonic tribute to the home land of her mother.

I turned away as he stooped and picked up the soiled, discarded effigy. When next I looked at him out of the corner of my eye he was holding the doll at arm's length and staring at it with a fixed gaze. I knew that he recognized it. There could be no doubt in his mind as to the identity of that telltale object. My heart was thumping fiercely.

An instant later he rejoined me, but not a word did he utter concerning the strange discovery he had made. His face was set and pallid, and his eyes were misty. Involuntarily I looked to see if he had the doll in his hand and in that glance observed the bulging surface of his coat pocket.

In silence we stood there awaiting the reappearance of Saks, who had gone into one of the adjoining rooms. I confess that my hand trembled as I lighted a fresh cigarette. He was staring moodily at the floor, his hands clasped behind his back. Something smacking of real intelligence ordered me to hold my tongue. I smoked placidly, yet waited for the outburst. It did not come. It never came. He kept his thoughts, his emotions, to himself, and for that single display of restraint on his part I shall always remember him as a true descendant of the nobility.

We tramped down the long flights of stairs side by side, followed by the supercilious Mr. Saks, who did all of the talking. He was, I think, discoursing on the extraordinary ability of ancient builders, but I am not absolutely certain. I am confident Tarnowsky did not hear a word the fellow said.

In my study we found Poopendyke and the two strangers.

"Have you made out the papers?" demanded the count harshly. An ugly gleam had come to his eyes, but he did not direct it toward me. Indeed, he seemed to avoid looking at me at all.

"Yes, Count Tarnowsky," said the lawyer. "They are ready for the signatures."

"Perhaps Mr. Smart may have reconsidered his offer to sell," said Tarnowsky. "Let him see the contracts."

"I have not reconsidered," I said quietly.

"You may sign here, Mr. Smart," said the notary as he gave me the document, a simple contract, I found.

"Jasper Titus will offer more than I can afford to pay," said the count. "Please do not feel that I am taking an unfair advantage of you. I am absolutely certain that he wants to buy this place for—his granddaughter, a descendant of barons."

The significance of this remark was obvious, and it was the nearest he ever came to uttering the conviction that had been formed in that illuminating five minutes upstairs. If he suspected—and I think he did—he preferred not to ask the questions that must have been searing his curious brain. It was a truly wonderful demonstration of self restraint. I would have given much to be able to read his innermost thoughts, to watch the perplexed movements of his mind.

"Schloss Rothhoefen is yours, Count Tarnowsky," said I. "It is for you to say whether his whim shall be gratified."

His lips twitched. I saw his hand touch the bulging coat pocket with a swift, passing movement.

"Will you be good enough to sign."

Mr. Smart?" he said coldly. He glanced at his watch. "My time is valuable. When can you give possession?"

"The day the deed is transferred."

"That will be in less than three days. I have satisfied myself that the title is clear. There need be no delay."

We signed the contract after I had requested Poopendyke to read it aloud to me. It called for the payment of 50,000 kronen, or a little over $2,000, at the time of signing. His lawyer handed me a package of crisp banknotes and asked me to count them. I did so deliberately, the purchaser looking on with a sardonic smile.

"Correct," said I, laying the package on the table. He bowed very deeply.

"Are you satisfied, Mr. Smart, that there are no counterfeits among them?" he inquired, with polite irony; then to his lawyer: "Take the gentleman's receipt for the amount in the presence of witnesses. This is a business transaction, not a game of chance." It was the insult perfect.

As he prepared to take his departure he assumed an insinuating air of apology and remarked to me:

"I owe you an apology, Mr. Smart. There was a time when I did you an injustice. I suspected you of keeping your mistress here. Pray forgive my error."

Five days later I was snugly ensconced in the ducal suit at the Bristol, overlooking the Kartnerringstrasse, bereft of my baronial possessions, but not at all sorry. My romance had been short lived. It was one thing to write novels about medieval castles and quite another thing to try to write a novel in one of them. I trust I may never again be guilty of such arrant stupidity as to think that an American born citizen can become a feudal baron by virtue of his dollars and cents any more than an American born girl can hope to be a real, dyed in the wool countess or duchess because some one needs the money more than she does. It would be quite as impossible, contrariwise, to transform a noble duke into a plain American citizen, so there you are, even up.

My plans were made. After a fortnight in Vienna I expected to go west to London for the autumn and then back to New York. Strange to relate, I was homesick. Never before had my thoughts turned so restlessly, so wistfully to the haunts of my boyhood days. I began to long for the lights of Broadway (which I had scornfully despised in other days) and the gay peacockery of Fifth avenue at 4 in the afternoon. It seemed to me that nowhere in all the world was life so joyous and blithe and worth while as in "old New York;" nowhere were the theaters so attractive, nowhere such restaurants. Even, in retrospect, the subway looked alluring, and as for the Fifth avenue stages, they were too beautiful for words. Ah, what a builder of unreal things a spell of homesickness may become if one gives it half a chance!

As for Schloss Rothhoefen, I had it on excellent authority no less a person than Conrad Schmick himself that barely had I shaken the dust of the place from myself before the new master put into execution a most extraordinary and incomprehensible plan of reconstruction. In the first place, he gave all the servants two weeks' notice and then began to raze the castle from the bottom upward instead of the other way round, as a sensible person might have been expected to do. He was knocking out the walls in the cellars and digging up the stone floors with

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Don'ts For Boys.

Don't neglect to use your toothbrush, particularly at bedtime. Good teeth help to keep you "fit."

Don't leave fat on your plate when it is served to you with your meat. Fat feeds the nerves. If you want to have well developed muscles you must have good nerves.

Don't think it doesn't matter whether your boots are sound or not. It matters a lot. Your health will soon suffer if you wear leaky boots.

Don't forget that it is only a "fad" to be particular about washing your hands before meals. It is anything but a fad. Poison may be conveyed into the system on food that has been touched by unwashed hands. Painter's colic is often brought on because painters neglect to wash their hands before meals.

Don't put pencils belonging to other boys into your mouth. Throat ailments that give a lot of trouble are often set going because boys will do so.

Don't forget that very unpleasant skin ailments may be caused by the habit of flinging your caps about in the street and into all sorts of dirty and dusty places and then directly afterward putting them on.

Don't make a practice of reading by the light of a flickering fire or you may have to wear spectacles before your time.

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY.

SPENDING money for that ominous thing known as a catenism. The grave question in the minds of the servants was whether the usual and somewhat mandatory two weeks' notice wouldn't prove a trifle too long. In fact, Hawkes, with an inspiration worthy of an office boy, managed to produce a sick grandmother and got away from the place at the end of one week, although having been paid in full for two.

The day on which I left for Paris still saw Tarnowsky at work, with his mason, heroically battering down the walls of the grim old stronghold, and I chuckled to myself. It was quite evident that he hadn't found the hiding place up to that time.

After several days in Paris I took myself off to London. I was expecting letters at Claridge's, where I always take rooms—not because I think it is the best hotel in London, but because I am to some extent a creature of habit. My mother took me to Claridge's when I was a boy, and I saw a wonderful personage at the door, whom I was pleased to call the king. Ever since then I have been going to Claridge's, and while my first king is dead there is one in his place, who bids fair to live long, albeit no one shouts encouragement to him. He wears the most gorgeous buttons I've ever seen, and I doubt if King Solomon himself could have been more regal, certainly not Nebuchadnezzar. He works from 7 in the morning until 7 at night, and he has an imperial scorn for anything smaller than half a sovereign.

There were many letters waiting there for me, but not one from the Countess Aline. I had encouraged the hope that she might write to me. It was the least she could do in return for all that I had done for her notwithstanding my wretched behavior on the last day of our association. While I had undoubtedly offended in the most flagrant manner, still my act was not unpardonable. There was tribute, not outrage, in my behavior.

Poopenkyke fidgeted a good deal with the scanty results of my literary labors, rattling the typed pages in a most insinuating way. He elided his machine with accusatory frequency, but I failed to respond. I was in no mood for writing. He said to me one day:

"I don't see why you keep a secretary, Mr. Smart. I don't begin to earn my salt."

"Salt, Mr. Poopenkyke," said I, "is the cheapest thing I know of. Now, if you had said pepper I might pause to reflect. But I am absolutely, inexorably opposed to rating anything on a salt basis. If you—"

"You know what I mean," he said stiffly. "I am of no use to you."

"Ah," said I triumphantly, "but you forgot. Who is it that draws the salary checks for yourself and Britton and who keeps the accounts straight? Who, I repeat? Why, you, Mr. Poopenkyke. You draw the checks. Isn't that something?"

"If I didn't know you so well I wouldn't hesitate to call you a blooming fool," Mr. Smart," said he, but he grinned as he said it.

"But he who hesitates is lost," said I. "This is your chance. Don't let it slip." He looked at me so steadily for a moment that I was in some fear he would not let it slip.

Before I had been in London a week it became perfectly clear to me that I could not stretch my stay out to anything like a period of two months. Indeed, I began to think about booking my passage home inside of two weeks. I was restless, dissatisfied, homesick. On the ninth day I sent Poopenkyke to the booking office of the steamship company with instructions to secure passage for the next sailing of the Mauretania, and then lived in a state of positive dread for fear the countess would find out. They are always going home it seems to me, and they are always trying to get on a single unfortunate ship. In all my experience abroad I've never known a time when Americans were not tumbling over each other trying to get back to New York in time to catch a certain train for home, wherever that may be. But Poopenkyke managed it somehow. He must have resorted to bribery.

CHAPTER XXVII.

I Change Garden Spots.

I AWOKE one morning to find a long and I was about to say interesting letter from the countess! It was a very commonplace communication I found on the third or fourth reading. The sum and substance of its contents was the information that she was going to Virginia Hot Springs with the family for a month or two and that Lord Amberdale was to join them there. It appeared that her father, being greatly overworked, was in need of a rest, and as the golf links at Hot Springs are especially designed to make it easy for rich men, his doctor had ordered him to that delightful resort. She hoped the rest would put him on his feet again. There was a page or so of drivel about Amberdale and what he expected to do at the New York horse show, a few lines concerning Rosemary, and a brief, almost curt intimation that a glimpse or two of me would not be altogether dispensing to her if I happened to be coming that way.

It may be regarded as a strange coincidence that I instructed Britton that very evening to see that my golf clubs were cleaned up and put into good shape for a little practice on a course near London, where I had been put up by an English author, and who was forever dlingling at me to come out and let him "out it all over me." I

Backache

Miss Myrtle Cothrum, of Russellville, Ala., says: "For nearly a year, I suffered with terrible backache, pains in my limbs, and my head ached nearly all the time. Our family doctor treated me, but only gave me temporary relief. I was certainly in bad health. My school teacher advised me to

Cardui

The Woman's Tonic

I took two bottles, in all, and was cured. I shall always praise Cardui to sick and suffering women. If you suffer from pains peculiar to weak women, such as headache, backache, or other symptoms of womanly trouble, or if you merely need a tonic for that tired, nervous, worn-out feeling, try Cardui. E-45 went out and bought a new brassie to replace the one destroyed by the experimenting Rockworth youth, and before I got through with it had a new putter, a niblick and a spoon, neither of which I needed, for the excellent reason that I already possessed a half dozen of each.

Keyed up to a high pitch of enthusiasm, I played golf for ten days and found my friend to be a fine sportsman. Like all Englishmen, he took a beating gracefully, but gave me to understand that he had been having a good deal of trouble with rheumatism or neuritis in his right elbow. On the last day we played he succeeded in bringing me in two down, and I've never seen neuritis dispersed so quickly as it was in his case. I remember distinctly that he complained bitterly of the pain in his elbow when he started out and that he was as fit as a fiddle at the eighteenth hole. He even went so far as to implore me to stay over till the next sailing of the Mauretania.

But I took to the high seas. Mr. Poopenkyke cabled to the Homestead at Hot Springs for suitable accommodations. I cannot remember when I had been so forehanded as all that, and I wonder what my secretary thought of me. My habit is to procrastinate.

I almost forgot to mention a trifling bit of news that came to me the day before sailing. Elsie Hazzard wrote in great perturbation and at almost unfeeling length to tell me that Count Tarnowsky had unearthed the supposedly mythical Rothhoefen treasure chests and was reputed to have found gold and precious jewels worth at least a million dollars. The accumulated products of a century's thievery! The hoard of all the robber barons! Tarnowsky's!

Strange to say, I did not write nor snarl with disappointment and rage. I took the news with a sang froid that almost killed poor Poopenkyke. He never quite got over it.

Nor was I especially disturbed or irritated by the telegram of condolence I received on board ship from Tarnowsky himself. He could not resist the temptation to gloat. I shall not repeat the message, for the simple reason that I do not wish to dignify it by putting it into permanent form.

We were two days out when I succeeded in setting my mind at rest in respect to Aline, Countess Tarnowsky. I had not thought of it before, but I remembered all of a sudden that I held decided scruples against marrying a divorced woman. Of course that simplified matters. When one has pre-conceived notions about such matters they afford excellent material to fall back upon, even though he may have disregarded them after a fashion while unselfishly thinking of some one else. As I say, the recollection of this well defined though somewhat remorseless principle of mine had the effect of putting my mind at rest in regard to the countess. Feeling as strongly as I did about marriage with divorcees, she became an absolutely undesirable person so far as matrimony was concerned. I experienced a rather doubtful feeling of relief. It was not so hard to say to myself that Lord Amberdale was welcome to her, but it was very, very difficult to refrain from adding the unamiable words "damn him."

This rigid, puritanical principle of mine, however, did not declare against the unrighteousness of falling in love with a divorcee.

If I have by any chance announced earlier in this narrative that the valley of the Donau is the garden spot of the world I must now ask you to excuse the ebullience of spirit that prompted the declaration. The Warm Springs valley of Virginia is infinitely more attractive to me.

I arrived there early one bright November morning three days after landing in New York. You will be rendered unhappy, I fear, by the announcement that I left Mr. Poopenkyke behind. He preferred to visit an aunt at New Rochelle, and I felt that he deserved a vacation.

Before leaving New York I had a rather unpleasant encounter with my publishers. It was in the rare of a luncheon at which I was led to believe that they still expected me to supply them with the manuscript of a novel at a very early date. They seemed considerably put out when I blandly informed them that I had got no farther along than the second chapter.

"We have been counting on this book of yours for January publication," said they.

I tried to explain that the muse had abandoned me in a most heartless fashion.

"But the public demands a story from you," said they. "What have you been doing all summer?"

"Romancing," said I.

I don't know just how it came about, but the suggestion was made that I put into narrative form the lively history of my sojourn on the banks of the Danube, trusting implicitly to the imagination yet leaving nothing to it.

"But it's all such blithering rot," said I.

"So much the better," said they triumphantly—even eagerly.

"I don't suppose that you, as publishers, can appreciate the fact that an author may have a soul above skittles," said I indignantly. "I cannot, I will not, write a line about myself, gentlemen. Not that I consider the subject sacred, but—"

"Wait!" cried the junior member, his face aglow. "We appreciate the delicacy of—er—your feelings, Mr. Smart, but I have an idea, a splendid idea. It solves the whole question. Your secretary is a most competent, capable young man and a genius after a fashion. I propose that he write the story. We'll pay him a lump sum for the work, put your name on the cover, and there you are. All you will have to do is to edit his material. How's that?"

And so it came to pass that I took myself off that evening for Hot Springs, secure in the thought that Poopenkyke would attend to my literary estate far more capably than I could do it myself and that my labors later on would be pleasantly devoted to the lazy task of editing, revising and deleting a tale already told.

If you are lucky enough to obtain rooms in the Homestead looking out over the golf course, with the wonderful November colorings in the hills and gaps beyond; over the casino, the tennis courts and the lower levels of the fashionable playground, you may well say to yourself that all the world is bright and sweet and full of hope. From my windows I could see far down the historic valley in the direction of Warm Springs, a hazy blue panorama wrapped in the air of an Indian summer and redolent with the incense of autumn.

Britton reminded me that it was a grand morning for golf, and I was at once reminded that Britton is an excellent chap, whose opinions are always worth considering. So I started for the links, stopping first at the office of the hotel on my way out, ostensibly to complain about the absence of window screens, but in reality to glance over the register in quest of certain signatures.

A brisk, oldish little man came up beside me and rather testily inquired why there were no matches in his room; also why the hot water was cold so much longer than usual that morning. He was not much of a man to look at, but I could not fail to note the obsequious manner in which the two clerks behind the desk looked at him. You couldn't possibly have discovered anything in their manner to remind you of hotel clerks you may have come to know in your travels. A half dozen boxes of matches were passed out to him in the twinkling of an eye, and I shudder to think what might have happened if there had been a hot water faucet handy, they were so eager to please.

"Mr. Brewster gone out yet?" demanded this important guest, pocketing all of the matches. I could see at once that he was a very rich man. "Did he leave any message for me? He didn't? He was to let me know whether he could play golf with—eh? Playing with Logan, eh? Well, of all the— He knows I will not play with Logan. See if Mr. Scott is in his room. Tell him I'd like to take him on for eighteen holes this morning."

He crossed to the news counter and glanced over the papers while a dusky bellboy shot off in quest of Mr. Scott.

"They all hate to play with the old geezer," said one of the clerks—a young one, you may be sure—lowering his voice and his eyebrows at the same time. "He's the rottenest player in the world."

"Who is he?" I inquired, mildly interested.

"Jasper Titus," was the reply. "The real old Jasper himself."

Before I could recover from my surprise the object of my curiosity approached the desk, his watch in his hand.

"Well, what does he say?" he demanded.

GREAT PROSPERITY AHEAD.

Prosperity has been slow in returning, but it is hitting the high places at last.

From all parts of the country comes reports of renewed activity. Factories are resuming operation on full running time; industries that have lain dormant for years are springing into existence again; labor is in demand everywhere, and gold is pouring into this country from abroad in an endless stream.

It is the history of this country that following a period of depression comes a long period of prosperity, and all reports indicate that the prosperity of 1916 will be the greatest we have yet known.

CAVING DITCH KILLS ONE; INJURES ONE.

The first real serious anti-Christmas accident for Fulton occurred about ten o'clock Thursday morning when Wyatt Horton was instantly killed and Horace Swift seriously injured by the caving in of a trench about eleven feet deep, on which they were working, excavating for the big concrete bridge over Harris Fork Creek on College street in South Fulton. Walter Easterwood, the third man in the trench, escaped uninjured.

The trench was about 18 feet long, three feet wide and eleven feet deep. The men worked in shifts digging, and the trench was to be fourteen feet deep.

Wyatt Horton, who was killed, was 25 years of age. His wife died some months ago. He has a little daughter three years old.

N. C. & ST. L. PREPARING FOR HEAVIER TRAFFIC.

The policy of preparedness with relation to the conduct of a railroad is reflected in the N. C. & St. L. railroad. Recently five new Mikado-type freight locomotives have been put in service on the Nashville division to take care of the increasing traffic as a result of the opening of the Paducah & Illinois railroad, with which the N. C. & St. L. connects at Paducah and over which road, by reason of its connection with the Burlington, much business will be handled from the northwest over the new railroad bridge at Metropolis, Ill., which is now building.

In connection with this business it is planned to enlarge the railroad yards at Hollow Rock Junction, and to greatly increase the facilities at this point not only in handling the freight traffic but to eliminate as far as possible any delays in handling the passenger traffic.

WAR UPON PAIN!

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Soister, Berkeley, Cal., writes: "Last Saturday, after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application I was as good as new." March 1915. THE RURAL CHURCH ON A GRADUAL DECLINE.

Is the rural church passing? Is this institution in Fulton county what it once was? Unfortunately, the rural church seems to be on the decline. Various causes have and are contributing to this effect, while the mode of worship itself seems to be following the trend of the times in a general change from the good, old days. Many students of religion claim that the decline of the country church began when pulpits were thrown open to politicians—when the local minister attempted to dictate political elections—when the church became a political forum. There is a sound basis for this claim. Men go to church to be told of God and spiritual matters. They want to pray, to put their house in order, to hesitate in the mad rush for the necessities and luxuries of life to think of the future life. When this is denied them, and, in its place, a minister delivers a political talk, urging them to vote for this candidate or for that cause in the name of religion, the religious man rightfully resents the assumed leadership of the preacher and, as a result, stays at home to commune with his God. It is a fact that two-thirds of the rural churches have ceased to grow and 83 per cent have a membership of less than 500. To change the country church to a community house may result in much temporal benefit to the communities in which the house may be located, but what of the church? The anti-religious could find no better way to hasten the complete disruption of the church.

Two Different Effects

The quality of food is very largely determined by the ingredients in the baking powder with which it is made. Cream of tartar baking powders, such as Royal, add only healthful qualities to the food.

The cream of tartar of Royal Baking Powder as used in food has the same wholesome effect on the digestive system as the cream of tartar in grapes, from which it is derived.

On the other hand, it is in evidence that objectionable mineral residues exist in food made with alum or phosphate baking powders.

There is a clause on baking powder labels which names all the ingredients. Read it and let it guide you.

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 11.—Richard R. Sutherland, one of the city's most prominent citizens, died Friday morning. The burial was held Friday at midnight, in compliance with one of his last requests. Dr. A. O. Longnecker, according to information received by us, is getting quite a reputation for his assistance in charitable enterprises. He was solicited for some old clothes to be sold by a church rummage sale, and he very promptly responded with three good suits, which brought the magnificent sum of $1.75. But the joke is on J. O. West, and he smiles, and says he is going to sell Doc's horse—but that will be another story.

Old Santa's Christmas List

By De LYSLE FERREE CASS

The reindeer are harnessed and ready
For their Christmas eve drive through the sky;
They whinny and stamp; sleigh bells
jingle,
And old Santa Claus' sledge is piled high
With an abundance of toys, books and goodies
For all good little boys and girls;
Santa'll fill up the stockings while the clock is tick-tocking,
And the snow flakes drift down in whirls.

He'll slide down the chimney as usual—
Fat, jolly, red-faced, full of glee—
He's been keeping tab on each one of you;
In the picture he's looking to see
Which kiddies have minded their parents,
Which youngsters have done as they ought;
If you have been good and done as you should,
Old Santa'll bring you a lot.

See! He's looking his list of names over,
Yes, and scratching the naughty ones out;

If Freddie had minded his mamma
Today he'd never need doubt
That Santa would fill up his stocking;
And if Maizie hadn't been bad,

That yellow-haired dollie that's going to Molly
Is one present she might have had.

For Molly behaved herself nicely,
She doesn't grumble, tell fibs or be mean;
So her papa has written to Santa Telling what a good girl she's been,
Then there's Tommy's name on the paper;

A real boy, but never saucous nor swears,
Nor is cruel to kitties. It's a thousand pities
That Freddie's mother had as few cares.

Now there's the names of Mildred and Jessie,
Of Margaret, Julia and Kate—
When they go out to play and hear mother say,

"Home early," they never are late.
Next comes Bobbie, that jolly young rascal!

And Henry—the boys call him "Hen"—
There's a red sled for Bob, and for Henry a job
Playing war with his tin soldier men.

Dick will wake up to find a new tool set;
Phil will get those shining new skates;
Joe's football outfit sure will please him;
He can now go and play with his mates.
Bert likes story books and he'll get some;
A hobby horse Harry will please;
Yes, each little tike will get what he likes—
Their good traits old Santa Claus sees.

As he cons the long list o'er and o'er,
Look! he's smiling to think of the joy,
That when Christmas bells ring, each holiday thing

Will bring to each good girl and boy.
Remember, you little folks, always,
That obedience, kindness, good cheer
Are the things mamma wants and are sure to enounce

You in Santa Claus' favor. Oh, hear

How the sleighbells are jingling and tinkling.

How the reindeer are prancing to go
Skimming along o'er the housetops,
Unmindful of cold, ice or snow.
Santa's pack is crammed to o'erflowing;
Is your name on his visiting list?
Now in bed abide; down the chimney he'll slide.

If you're good, your house won't be missed.

Prepared.

"I'm going to have a fine time at Christmas," said one young miss to another. "Mr. Huggins is coming to our party, and he is color-blind, you know."

"Does his color-blindness add to your enjoyment?" asked her friend.

"Rather!" was the reply. "He thinks all the holly-berries are mistletoe!"

Had One Already.

"I don't know what to give Lizzie for a Christmas present," one chorus girl is reported to have said to her mate, while discussing the gift to be made to a third.

"Give her a book," suggested the other.

And the first one replied, meditatively:
"No, that won't do; she's got a book."

GIFT SUGGESTIONS

Acceptable Gifts Any Girl Can Make

IT'S lots of fun making Christmas gifts, and the girl who will give up the time to the work will be surprised to find how inexpensively she can provide something useful and pretty for everyone whom she wishes to remember. Likely some of the materials can be found at home, and a considerable saving in the cost of the rest can be made by getting your friends to buy with you.

The football calendar in Fig. 1 is a novel gift that brother will appreciate for his room. The football is made of cardboard. To make it symmetrical the edges must be curved alike, and the surest way of setting them so is by means of a paper pattern (Fig. 5). To make this pattern, take a piece of paper 7 by 9 inches in size, fold it along its center as indicated by dotted lines in Fig. 2, bring ing corner A over to corner B (Fig. 3), then fold it again, bringing corner A to corner C (Fig. 4). From the folded corner measure off a distance of three inches along the short folded edge, and four inches along the long folded edge. Then draw an arc of an ellipse between the points marked off

(Fig. 4), cut along the arc, unfold, and you will have the pattern shown in Fig. 5. Place the pattern upon the cardboard, mark out around it, and cut out the piece.

Color the football with brown crayon or water-color, and shade the surface to make it look round.
Buy a small calendar pad at the stationery store and paste it to the center of the football. Then tie a bow in each end of a piece of baby ribbon long enough to form a loop for hanging up the calendar by, and sew these bows to the ends of the football.

Father or mother will be pleased with a blotter-pad like that shown in Fig. 6. It is made of four pieces of blotter four inches wide and eight inches long, and a piece of cardboard of equal size, held together at the ends with ribbon passed through holes punched near the corners and tied in bows.

The Japanese pincushion in Fig. 7 consists of a little Japanese doll with a cushion tucked under each arm, seated upon a piece of heavy cardboard.
Use a piece of cardboard four inches square for the base, and cover it with bright colored silk. Sew the doll up on this base. Make the pincushion out of silk stuffed with cotton.

Fig. 8 shows a unique hatpin holder for mother's or sister's dresser, made of three thread spools glued end to end, with a piece of narrow ribbon tied to the end spools to hang the holder by.

The necktie rack in Fig. 9 is made of a ribbon spool slipped over a stick 16 inches long, with a piece of ribbon tied to each end of the stick.

The spools of the hatpin holder, and the spool and stick of the necktie rack, may be stained or gilded.

Treatment of Burns.

The toxic factor is regarded by many physicians as the most important one to combat when dealing with a case of severe burns. The routine practice is to swab the burnt surface gently with benzine and then to powder it thickly with noviodine powder and to cover it with gauze. No attempt to render the skin absolutely aseptic is made. Morphine and anaesthetics are avoided as tending to promote or increase shock.

When pain is very severe anaesthesia powder is also used. This is both antiseptic and analgesic. The old dressing is removed in a bath when necessary and the process repeated. Blisters are snipped before the noviodine is applied. Cardiac stimulants are given freely, and a great point in the treatment is copious saline infusion, which is stated to have given admirable results. All wet dressings, ointments and sedative drugs are avoided religiously.

FALL CALVING COWS BRING MORE PROFIT

Champion Shorthorn Cow and Calf.

A mistake made by a great many farmers in South Carolina is to have their cows calve during the spring months. All authorities on dairying are agreed that for many reasons it is more profitable to have cows calve in fall. The principal advantages of fall calving are four in number and are stated below.

1. As a rule, prices for dairy products, especially butter, are much higher in fall than in spring.

Handy Feed Rack for Live Stock—Easily Moved Around Lot or Field.

2. Cows calving in spring usually have plenty of good pasturage immediately after calving, during winter. 3. It is important to be able to do most of the dairy work when other farm duties are light. Winter is the lightest of seasons for farm work. When cows calve in fall, the bulk of the year's dairy work comes in winter.

STORAGE FOR SWEET POTATO

Keeping Qualities Depend Upon Variety Grown and Upon Methods of Handling at Digging Time.

The keeping qualities of the sweet potato depend upon the variety grown, the type of soil in which it was grown, and the methods of handling at digging time. Clay soils on which high-nitrogenous fertilizer has been used will produce rough, cracked potatoes. Such potatoes are generally poor keepers. A poor sandy soil will produce small, well matured smooth, uncracked potatoes. Such potatoes are usually good keepers.

Too much care cannot be spent in digging the potato. If carelessly dug and handled the potatoes become bruised, hence they very easily rot. When digging it is best first to cut the vines, preferably with a vine cutter, and then run under the potatoes with a regular sweet potato digger. The diggers are similar to a plow but have fingers attached to a short moldboard. After digging, the plants or hills should be lifted and laid carefully in piles, after which they can be picked off by hand. This method will prevent a lot of needless handling and bruising. When the potatoes are shaken off in heaps, or are picked and pitched to a heap or into a basket they are badly bruised and skinned, and when in this state are in a very favorable condition to rot. Before being placed in storage they should be allowed to dry out as much as possible.

The successful keeping of sweet potatoes depends on the following principles:

1. Harvest potatoes before they are frosted.
2. Don't bruise them, handle as little as possible when digging.
3. Throw out all cracked and broken potatoes.
4. Dry out as much as possible before storing.
5. Keep dry.
6. Keep warm.—North Carolina Experiment Station.

The Kicking Horse.

The cure of a "kicker" is a difficult task. There are many remedies advised, but even the best is sometimes ineffectual. It may arise from vice or from excessively nervous disposition. One of the common appliances used is to swing a bale of straw behind the horse so that he may kick until he is tired without doing injury to himself. The bale will swing to and fro and irritate to the point of persuasion that there are more profitable vices than kicking.

Bees and Fruit.

The interest of the beekeepers and the fruit growers are identical, and there should be earnest co-operation between them. Every orchardist should keep bees and every beekeeper should grow fruit. The real value of the honey bee is only now beginning to be realized. Education along this line is needed so that this work may be carried on in a scientific way and not in the haphazard manner of the past.

Salt Alfalfa for Horses.

If alfalfa hay is stored in the barn for horses, it is well to sprinkle it generously, while mowing it away, with a mixture of salt and air-slaked lime, equal parts.

diately and this lasts until about August. But during this period the cow's flow is naturally heavy anyway. About the time pastures dry up, a spring-calving cow's milk flow begins to fall off and by the time she is put on dry feed of sufficient quantity, her milk production has generally fallen off so much that it cannot be brought back to normal. On the other hand, when cows calve in the fall, their owners will see to it that they get plenty of dry feed to provide for the heavy milk production of winter. Then when the cows begin to fall off in the spring and need good succulent feed most, the pastures come along to keep up their milk flow.

3. It is important to be able to do most of the dairy work when other farm duties are light. Winter is the lightest of seasons for farm work. When cows calve in fall, the bulk of the year's dairy work comes in winter.

4. When a man has his cows calving in fall, he will unquestionably have a greater inducement to grow silage corn and fill a silo for winter feed for his stock. In this way, he is led into the practice of using silage, the most economical winter feed for cattle.—Clemson College.

MULCH FOR THE STRAWBERRY

Protection Is Afforded Both Plants and Fruit—Should Be Applied in Fall Before Frost.

(By C. W. RAPP, Department of Horticulture, Oklahoma A. and M. College, Stillwater.)

Mulches are one of the most important factors in successful strawberry culture, for by their use protection is given to both plants and fruit. The straw mulch, which is most frequently used, should be applied late in the fall, preferably before frost. When applied at this time it serves as a protection throughout the entire winter. Its use largely prevents the heaving which is so noticeable in many patches. The mulch also holds much water, with the result that the patch is better able to withstand the dry summer weather. During the spring the mulch protects the berries from dirt, which is dashed upon them by the rains if the ground is bare. If the spring is late, in the home garden the mulch may be raked over the plants to protect the blossoms and fruit from frosts.

After the berries are picked the mulch should be washed into the soil. Where this is done, much humus and plant food is added with the result that greater yields may be expected.

HAIRY VETCH FOR PASTURES

When Seeded in Fall It Furnishes Good Grazing During Winter and in the Early Spring.

The persistent character of hairy vetch in the soils of many of the southern states makes it worthy of consideration of a pasture plant. When seeded early in the fall with oats it will furnish good grazing during the winter and early spring and afterwards produce a good crop of hay. The few cases in which it has been tried in permanent pastures have been sufficiently successful to encourage further trials.

Notes of the Feed Lot.

When skim milk is fed to young pigs, they should be started on it gradually and it should always be fed with a little meal and other feed.

The natural feed for hogs is not liquids, but solids, therefore we cannot understand how some men believe that they can fatten hogs on slops alone. Many of them keep on trying year after year, but never succeed.

As the hard work comes up on the horses, cut down their feed accordingly.

Care of the Calf.

The skim milk calf simply must have something to partly take the place of the cream that has been separated from the milk, or it will develop into a pot-bellied, scrawny animal, unfit for either veal or dairy purposes. Teach it to eat as early as possible in order to supply this deficiency.

Big Waste of Manure.

It is really a crime the way some farmers are permitting the escape into gullies and creeks of so much manure. The records show that constant cultivation depletes the fertility of the soil, and the farmer who allows this valuable soil builder to escape is the one whose farm soon becomes barren. Preserve the manure.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLUGGISH LIVER.

Crashes Into Sour Bile, Making You Sick And You Lose A Day's Work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it. Advt.

HEAD OF DEMOCRACY WILL WED SATURDAY.

President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt will be married on Saturday, Dec. 18, at Mrs. Galt's home in Washington, according to a formal announcement made at the White House.

It was also announced that the only guests will be Mrs. Galt's mother, her brothers and sisters, the President's brother and sister, his daughters, and the members of his immediate household. No invitations will be issued. No announcement was made regarding plans for a honeymoon, but it is expected that the President and his bride will leave Washington soon after the ceremony for somewhere in the South. Best wishes, Woody, old boy.

WAR UPON PAIN!

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Soister, Berkeley, Calif., writes: "Last Saturday, after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second applications I was as good as new." March 1915. All druggists 25c.

An enterprising citizen of Middleboro, now dry, is said to be erecting a house at the exact junction of the States of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, at Cumberland Gap, a mile or two from Middleboro. He purposes to have three stands and sell liquor in Virginia, cider in Tennessee and pop in Kentucky. It will not be a long way across the room, but in Hickman some of our bootleggers sell the whole smear from the same stand.

If you expect to join the Christmas Saving Club—Monday next is the day to get busy.

WANT KENTUCKY RABBITS.

While Kentucky in the infancy of its efforts to re-establish old-time hunting conditions is restocking the fields and the mountains with big game, Pennsylvania is short of rabbits and has requested Executive Agent J. Q. Ward, of the game and fish commission to secure thirty-six dozen bunnies from the well stocked fields of Kentucky. Pennsylvania will pay 35 cents for rabbits sent in good condition.

SEND IT IN EARLIER.

The various churches, social clubs, and other local organizations having regular meetings are requested to get copy for publication to the Courier as early as possible. It seems to be a custom to send copy Thursday which could have been sent Monday and sometimes it must be left out of the paper because the live local news—unobtainable until the last minute—takes precedence of all else. Send your copy in earlier, please.

With a Railroad Survey in Alaska

WHEAT FARM IN TANANA VALLEY

A SEASON'S experiences with a locating crew on the first government railroad in the interior of Alaska would fill a book. How we ran down a monster black bear in mid-stream with a river steamer; the everyday trials in our work; the wading and actual swimming of swamps, and the constant attendance of the "little singer," the Alaska mosquito; methods of bathing, foods on the Tanana river—these are only a few of the occurrences that befell one of eleven engineering parties on this herculean government project, writes George Mayo, assistant United States engineer.

The first 400 miles of railroad, the part only of the great system that now is to be a reality, has its initial point at Seward, a thriving town on the southern coast of Kenai peninsula, follows the now inoperative Alaska Northern railroad around Turnigan and Kuk arms, and then follows the Susitna and Chitina rivers to Broad pass, from where the projected railroad runs down the Nenana river to its junction with the Tanana, and up this river to Fairbanks.

In order to reach the Fairbanks end of the line, where our work lay, we took a coast steamer from Seattle to Skagway on June 3; over the White pass and Yukon railroad to White Horse, and from there by river steamer down the Yukon river and up the Tanana river to Fairbanks.

As the days went by the more wonderful grew the scenery. At times we would pass through a channel so narrow that it seemed as if we were travhad passed over it. Running aft, we saw the bear bob up unharmed, and, after shaking himself like a dog, swim serenely on his way.

We arrived at Fairbanks on the afternoon of June 15. Fairbanks, a thriving town, is the market place and distributing point for a placer district that turns out from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 annually. Then, too, it is the agricultural center of the Tanana valley region, where, despite the general idea to the contrary, large crops are grown of potatoes and other root products, besides a great deal of barley and oats.

The country along the Tanana river has a weird sort of monotony. On the south side the country is one vast flat, mostly tundra, swamp. In this latitude the ground seldom thaws beyond a few feet in depth; consequently there is little or no subdrainage. This is the swamp country through which our portion of the preliminary line ran.

A great deal has been written of the Alaska mosquito, but nowhere have I seen accounts of the little insects exaggerated. During the period from May to August it was necessary that one wear constantly a head net that drooped from a stiff-brimmed hat to a bottom taken in and securely tied around the chest. To protect one's hands one had to wear heavy canvas gauntlets, which were tied tightly about the wrists. The little pests would sting right through an ordinary cotton shirt, so I found it necessary to wear an additional flannel shirt. At lunch "on line" we would build a ersing a great deep and green river, and the echoes from the screw were thrown back from both shores. The shores were precipitous walls, spruce clad and tilting down from snow-capped summits. Little waterfalls trickled down every slope.

We touched at Ketchikan and Wrangell, and at Juneau spent a part of a very pleasant afternoon. Skagway, the breathing place for many '97 and '98 pioneers who crossed the Chilcoot and White passes, and which lies at the extreme end of Lynn canal, a narrow channel with many small glaciers on its shores, is almost deserted.

Leaving Skagway on the world-famous White Pass and Yukon railroad, the train started the heavy climb almost immediately. There were places on the climb, where looking down an enormous depth, we could see the tumbling Skagway river, like an uneasy streak of molten silver, and then, looking up, met only the overhang of a granite cliff, with the glare of snow-covered peaks across the canyon. We shortly tipped the summit and rushed through White pass, Bennett, Caribou, down into White Horse in the ghostly midnight of an Arctic day.

Down the Yukon, It was 4 a. m. when we tumbled into our bunks aboard the river steamer Yukon, and we were well across Lake La Horge before I awoke. Several little incidents occurred to break the tedium. We heard one morning an outcry on the forward deck. Leaving our bridge game, we rushed out to discover a huge black bear swimming not far ahead. With the helm shifted a little the steamer bore down directly upon the swimmer and in a moment smudge, and, somewhat relieved at least from the attack of the "bugs," would eat our sandwiches in a bath of smoke.

Bathing Under Difficulty.

The matter of baths was difficult. Often in the evening we would paddle out to a bar in the middle of the stream, build a smudge of drift, and take a hurried plunge in the icy Tanana waters. We would be nearly eaten alive by the persistent little "bugs" before we could get back into our clothes and to camp. One man's method of taking a bath was ingenious. He would drag the camp wash tub, filled with hot water, into the office tent, carefully kill off all the insects inside, and take his bath with the utmost luxury.

We were fortunate in not having to depend upon pack trains for our transportation. All our work being near the river, we were able to do our moving with boats.

In the actual field work we made great progress, unless in heavy spruce timber, where our speed depended upon the axmen. In the swamps—and there was swamp wherever there was no spruce—we were forced to wade for miles in water to our waists or higher. There were occasions, too, when a series of streams and lakes had to be crossed by swimming and by rafts. In this swamp work we were able to practice that beautiful athletic and modern dance, the "niggerhead tango." Niggerheads are tufts of coarse grass that grow in several feet of muck. When traversing a niggerhead swamp one must step quickly from niggerhead to niggerhead or else drop between, and as they are very unstable a peculiar step is evolved.

POSTS support a framework on which a floor has been built. Above this is a tent. A mosquito netting surrounds the sides. Inside, this room is large enough for a bed and a chair. This can be used in any except the severest winter weather. A double canvas top with eight inches space between will make it cooler in summer than the single tent. THE OGRE OF CHRISTMAS.

You remember that in "Hop o' My Thumb" and in some of the other old stories we all love there is an ogre who takes all the joy out of life and renders earthly existence barely worth while. This ogre must always be slain before complete happiness can be known. It is so with the Christmas ogre—POVERTY—it must be slain with the sword of silver ere complete happiness can be experienced.

You good men and women of Hickman, think back upon your childhood days. Can you imagine a greater happiness than the visit of Santa and the visions of good things that would be yours out of his bountiful store? What if the ogre of Christmas had been there to prevent Santa's visit and to rob you of your happiness? Such is the great calamity that faces many of our families in Hickman at this glad season. The ogre is here in all his hideousness but we can put him to flight if only we have the full support of every man, woman and child in Hickman with their swords of silver.

Come make you ready to battle, fight hard and fight long—the ogre may be vanquished and there need be no breaking hearts on the Birthday of the King of Kings. Any of the local druggists will be glad to receive donations for the local charities. Give freely or else ask Mrs. Dillon or Mrs. Bradley for a child or two to make happy on Christmas day. Let us have no empty stockings or hungry stomachs in Hickman at this glad season. Realize your Christmas responsibility, demonstrate fully the brotherhood of God by practicing the brotherhood of man. "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

NOW ON SALE.

The Red Cross Christmas Seals are now on sale in Hickman. The local representative of the Anti-tuberculosis Society, the Rev. W. F. Renneberg, has placed the seals on sale at the following local stores: Cowgill's Drug Store, Smith & Amberg's Store, Millet & Alexander, Helm & Ellison, R. L. Bradley, Schlenker's Jewelry Store, Leibovitz and the Hickman Drug Store.

Red Cross Christmas Seals save lives. Every seal you buy is a bullet in the fight against tuberculosis. It protects your country, your neighbor, your family and yourself from the disease and its cost. Tuberculosis is our most destructive disease. One person out of every four in America who die between the ages of fifteen and fifty die from tuberculosis. It is the chief cause of poverty. But it is preventable and conquerable. This war, man against disease, is a winning war—not wasting war, man against man. It is the War that Pays—it brings prosperity. Enlist in the campaign, buy the Christmas Seals and get them early.

PACIFICISTS AT LARGE IN KENTUCKY.

At a mass meeting of 300 citizens at Heath, M. Cracken county, Monday night, resolutions disapproving of President Wilson's "preparedness" program and urging Congressman Alben W. Barkley "to use all fair means within his power to prevent any legislation tending to carry out Mr. Wilson's plan as would dangerously augment the already huge expenditures upon the army and navy," were adopted by a vote of ten to one. The resolutions will be forwarded to Congressman Barkley at once.

Madame: If you had $50 to your credit in the bank with which to pay your Christmas shopping bills—well it would be nice to say the least. You can have that amount next year by joining our Christmas Savings Club. See our ad for particulars.—Hickman Bank & Trust Co.

THE GIFT OF CHRISTMAS

"WHAT SHALL I GIVE?"

This Ever-Present Question at Christmas Time is Answered By Our Complete Stocks of Gifts of All Descriptions. An Hour or Two Spent in Our Store Will Make Christmas Giving the Pleasure it is Meant To Be

"THE Gift Without the Giver is Bare," sang Lowell, and we all feel happier for thinking over and planning our Christmas gifts to those who are near and dear to us. None of the gift's individuality is lost, however, if you should need some suggestions. If you are a woman it is not surprising you should seek some advice on men's gifts. And if you are a man you almost certainly can use some suggestions on giving to the women folks.

Now, let us give you a hint of the help our store can be in solving your gift-problems. The following list is a brief summary of our Christmas stocks, and is far from complete.

TENDENCY TO SLANG.

Are we gradually making a language for ourselves which is to be distinguished from English by what is called slang? It looks so. The other evening a mother was sitting with her daughter in a ball room, when the girl was approached by a young man who wanted to dance with her. "Hello, kid," he said, "Are you hooked up for the next trot?" "Nix," she replied. "I've been a wall flower so much tonight. I'm beginning to think I'm a back number." "No chance," responded the gallant, "a guy that can shake a hoof like you can pass Pavlova backed off the board." The mother, who was a fine old lady of the old school, gasped and nearly fainted, when the daughter arose, smoothed out her skirts and said, "Slip me your mit, pal, you're the lil' ol' kiddie, all right, but, at that, I'm for you." Remember when Teddy Roosevelt was going around the country showing his intelligent front teeth and telling folks what they ought to do and how he was the man to do it for them? Of course you do, and how the enthusiast in the brown derby used to get up in his seat and whirl a red bandana over his head and shout, "Go to it, kid, bat 'em with your big stick! Make 'em sick, ho! You're the stuff, all right, all right!" The eminent practitioner who used to clothe himself in dignity and long whiskers, now feels your pulse and tells you "you're off your feed." The politician has discarded the baby kissing habit because it is insubstantial, but he gets next to the people just the same with his slang and the high brow editorial writer writes "with the punch in it." Listen! Get this! Don't think, these days, that every fellow who uses slang is a roughneck. The chances are he's got the goods.

Cures Old Sores, Other Remedies Won't Cure. The worst cases, no matter of how long standing, are cured by the wonderful, old reliable Dr. Porter's Antiseptic Healing Oil. It relieves Pain and Heals at the same time. 25c, 50c, $1.00

Notice: Several of our customers were disappointed last year in not being able to get engraved calling cards for Christmas gifts, because they waited too long to place their orders. If you contemplate giving cards this year, please let us have your orders early. Nothing more appropriate or more acceptable than nice engraved cards—they are useful, inexpensive and a continuous reminder of your remembrance—but orders should be placed now.—The COURIER.

Hon. W. L. Hampton was over Tuesday getting the Rainey residence, which he has rented, shaped up for occupancy. Mr. Hampton expects to move his family over from near Fulton in a few days and will be ready to take up his duties first of the year as Circuit Court Clerk of Fulton County.

Capt. Holstead, of the U. S. Army, now located at Cincinnati, and T. D. Samuels, of Clinton, were in Town Tuesday. Capt. Holstead, while visiting relatives at Clinton, also looked over the Reelfoot Oil region.

On account of the mild winter we find we have too many Ladies Suits and Coats so we are selling them at ridiculous low price.—Baltzer & Dodds D. G. Co.

From a news standpoint, things are exceedingly quiet.

Santa Claus was born ages ago, and he has been so busy ever since that he never has taken the time to study his family tree. Now that the summer's work is over and the time is at hand when young men begin to long for the gaieties of city life, we suggest that you spend your idle moments improving methods of farming. Thumb over the pages of your farm journals, and the bulletins of the agricultural schools, and perfect yourself for a winning fight in extracting greater wealth from the mother earth, the source from which all wealth springs. Stick to the farm. It is the greatest spot on earth.

PERFECT ORGANIZATION.

The first week of the Sixty-fourth Congress, which is destined to be historic in the nation's annals, brought about practically harmonious organization in both houses and revealed the determination of administration leaders to attempt no serious legislative business until after the holiday recess.

Congress will adjourn Saturday for the holidays and reconvene January 3rd.

It took a jury in Judge Amberg's court just ten minutes Tuesday to convict and fine Chas. Brown, negro, $60 and costs for bootlegging. Chief Wright, in the absence of the city attorney, conducted the prosecution—and Chief Wright is getting so he performs this work right along Blackstone lines. Brown was turned up by a negro who swore he got drunk on the liquor Brown sold him and finally landed in jail. He only bought a dollar's worth—but it cost $11.50 more before he finished.

News Snapshots Of the Week

The opening of congress with the reading of his message by the president led the week's events; as predicted, his program called for preparedness; he also hailed a new pan-Americanism and condemned the foreign born citizens who abused their privileges, asking for severe legislation with which to punish them. In the war area the British in their march on Bagdad, Anatolia, met further reverses. Greece, while completely mobilized, held to her benevolent neutrality, while the Tentons charged the rest of Serbia. After the recall of Captains Boy-Ed and Von Papen of the German embassy was requested by our government Von Bernstorff asked for reasons, which were denied him. William F. McCombs and Charles D. Hilles, Democratic and Republican chairmen respectively, called the national committees in session. Baron Shibusawa, Japan's Morgan, visits us. Bryan bade Ford godspeed as the Oscar II, peace ship, sailed on its mission to Europe.

CRYSTAL THEATRE SOLD TO H. A. COLVIN.

The Crystal Theatre, which has been under the management of Parker & Taylor for several months, was sold Monday to H. A. Colvin, of Indiana, who took charge at once. The new proprietor, whose wife and two children are with him, has been "on the road" for some time in specialty work; viz: talking pictures. This innovation will be given to his Hickman patrons about twice each week, and has proven very popular on a large circuit worked by him in Tennessee for several months past. The Crystal was under lease by Parker and Taylor but was owned by Wright & West.

Mr. Taylor will continue to operate the Empress, giving a regular afternoon and night program at 5c and 10c—no more or no less. This he believes to be the popular priced show.

Here's wishing both movies continued success.

The trade territory of a town is not dependent upon the distance to neighboring trading points. The trade territory depends upon the enterprise of the merchants and the residents of the town. If a town does not reach after the trade, it will come only as fast as it has to, and it will grow as it is forced to. But if the merchants go after business in the surrounding country, as they are doing now, advertising in every possible way and making good every word of their advertising, trade will come from an ever-increasing radius, the town will gain a reputation for being awake and it will forge to the front. It is the men in the town, and not altogether the men living within a certain number of miles from it that makes the town.

KENTUCKY LEADER IN GOOD ROADS

Began Building Macadamized Roads as Far Back as the Eighteenth Century

STATE AID LAW IN 1914

In 1908 the General Assembly of Kentucky Passed a Constitutional Amendment Permitting the State to Lend its Credit to the Counties for Roadbuilding and Maintenance.

Frankfort—Kentucky was one of the first states in the union to establish state aid for road construction. As early as 1810 the General Assembly of Kentucky provided for the opening of roads to the Virginia line and began the construction of macadamized roads in 1820.

Prior to 1840, Kentucky had spent more than $2,000,000 in the construction of macadamized roads which were built on rights of way sixty feet wide. These roads were located on light grades and easy curves, and were graded twenty-four to thirty feet between ditches. Telford foundations between sixteen and twenty-four feet were used with a good macadam surface. This work was under the supervision of a state engineering department, consisting of a state highway engineer, at a salary of $5,000 per year, with a corps of assistants at salaries ranging from $1,100 to $2,500 per annum. Many of these roads are yet in a splendid state of preservation, and are rendering substantial service to the communities through which they pass.

However, the policy of internal improvement was discontinued prior to 1850, owing to the financial condition of the treasury, and a change in political parties, and it was not until 1908 that any attempt was made to revive a state system of highways.

In 1908 the General Assembly of Kentucky passed a constitutional amendment permitting the state to lend its credit to the counties for roadbuilding, and to provide for the construction and maintenance of public highways.

A highway department was established to consist of the Commissioner of Public Roads and such assistants as the Governor might deem advisable, with an appropriation of not to exceed $20,000 per annum from the automobile license tax which had been accruing from 1910 as a state road fund.

The department was organized and Robert C. Terrell was appointed the first commissioner. The duties of the department were purely advisory, and while the counties were required to request plans, specifications and estimates of cost for the road and bridge work, which exceeded $500 in cost, they were not compelled to use the plans and specifications thus prepared. It was not until after the state aid law passed by the General Assembly of 1914 became operative that the state was really in a position to lend material aid to the counties. Although a great deal was accomplished by the commissioner and his assistants prior to 1910, it was only, as stated above, advisory, which in many instances it was hard to get the county officials to take advantage of the engineering assistance offered, but in 1914 the general assembly passed a law levying a five-cent tax on each $100 worth of taxable property in the state of Kentucky. The law further provided that the money should be distributed to the counties based upon the amount of money levied and collected in each county for roadbuilding, and that no county should receive in any one year more than two per cent of the total road fund. The department immediately set to work in the spring of 1915 to secure the co-operation of the counties in building a system of roads as laid out in the bill passed by the General Assembly, which provided that the roads should connect up the county seat of each county of the Commonwealth with the county seats of the adjoining counties by the most direct and practical route, and the county seats of border counties with the state line on the most direct and practical routes leading from said county seats to the county seats of the adjoining counties in the adjacent states.

Why not nationalize highways as well as national waterways?

Never can we have excellent roads until we adopt a patrol system of repair and maintenance.

KENTUCKY'S STATE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC ROADS

(By Hon. James B. McCreary, Governor of Kentucky.)

A State Department of Public Roads was advocated by me when I was a candidate for Governor of Kentucky. After I was elected I recommended in my message to the General Assembly the enactment of a law providing for a Department of Public Roads, and an appropriation and a proper and comprehensive act was passed.

The people of Kentucky are in favor of good roads. They know that good roads mean a decrease in the expense of hauling products to market and in getting goods home from the place of purchase. They know that good roads increase the value of farms, mean better access to schools and to churches, and better and more attractive environments.

The Commissioner of Public Roads appointed by me has been active and successful in his organization. He has sent bulletins and literature and has furnished plans and specifications and estimates of cost for many bridges and made many surveys for sites, assisted in road and bridge building, and the sentiment in favor of good public roads has been greatly strengthened.

JAS. B. MCCREARY
Former Governor of Kentucky.

The law creating the department set aside from the license tax on automobiles, which constitutes the State Road Fund, the amount which has been necessary to make the road service efficient.

The new road law in Kentucky has met but little opposition, and where it has been given a fair and impartial trial by county officials, and the county road engineers have been given an opportunity to perform their duties unhampered, it has been entirely satisfactory.

The State of Kentucky no doubt will continue the progressive policies so successfully instituted.

A system of good roads is the basis of the country's progress and upon this largely depends its material development and prosperity. Public roads have been compared to the veins and arteries in the human body, by which the circulation is carried on, and when they are clogged, or are not in good condition, the usual functions are impeded and vitally diminished.

I am in favor of the United States Government aiding, to a proper extent, in the building of roads. Large amounts of money are appropriated annually by Congress for rivers and harbors, for irrigation and for government buildings, and in the same line Congress should appropriate money to aid in the construction of public roads.

This can never be an ideal country to live in until it is interlaced with a network of highways and the highways so marked as to direct the traveler which road to take to reach his destination.

A man who is opposed to road improvement is worth about as much to a locality as a safety razor is to a colored man at a Georgia picnic.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Avoid the High Collar.
A well known doctor quite accidentally discovered that high collars produce nervous headaches among both men and women. He noticed that all his patients who were troubled with headache and giddiness wore a high and rather tight collar, which compressed the neck. When this was removed and not worn for some days the headache disappeared. It is just the same with women who wear high collars, bones or stiff neckbands or the high linen collar. If they are troubled with giddiness and headaches they will probably gain immediate relief by changing to a lower and easier fitting collar.

ORDINARY ECONOMY.

It is really strange the way some people will scrape and economize to save a penny in some ways and turn right around and waste dollars in others. They leave their wagons and buggies and all sorts of machinery out in the weather from one year's end to another, apparently never giving a thought to the fact that every day of inclement weather causes a distinct deterioration in value and usefulness of the article or vehicle in question. Take a walk around town and you will see wheel barrows, axes, garden tools, and many other things out in the weather, all corroding with rust and wearing out from neglect. And every time you see this you see a man who is economizing in one way and throwing his money to the birds in another. —Lilbourn Herald.

DIED THIS MORNING.

Miss Fern Bryan, aged twenty-one years, passed away this morning at 9:45 at St. Mary's Hospital. Miss Bryan had been here 11 months, coming from her home at Hickman, Ky., a sufferer from consumption. Miss Bryan was known as a young lady of exceptionally sweet character who counted her friends by her acquaintances. She made a great fight against the disease, but it had taken a firm hold and this morning death ended her many days of suffering.

The funeral was held from the Diley Parlors. Interment was made in South Park. The services were conducted by Rev. R. F. Jenkins, of the Baptist church. Miss Bryan being a life long member of this church.—Roswell, N. M., Daily Record.

GAME AND FISH COMMISSION IS AFTER VIOLATORS OF STATE LAWS

Over Five Hundred Men Convicted For Violations—
English Pheasants Liberated By Commission
Are Protected For Number of Years

A Kentucky trainer and two of his champion bird dogs.

Frankfort, Ky.—(Special).—The Game and Fish Commission since the last year has convicted 561 men for violation of the law. They took the place of beating the wardens. How much better it would have been for them to have taken out their license. They would have had the satisfaction of feeling that they were helping the enforcement of law and contributing to better game conditions and were not cheaters.

The money collected for sale of hunters' license has been, and is being economically spent for the enforcement of the laws and the re-stocking of the fields and streams with game and fish.

The Commission is taking this means of again warning the hunters, not only to take out their license, but to always carry them when hunting.

English Pheasants.

The 1,500 English pheasants liberated by the Commission are protected for a number of years, and a warning is hereby given to every one who kills these valuable and costly birds, that if caught he will be prosecuted. Now Mr. Hunter, if you see a strange bird do not run your legs off to destroy it, but take every possible means not to injure it yourself, and do not let an opportunity escape you to urge others to do likewise. These pheasants were bought with your money, so see that they are protected until they increase sufficiently to allow shooting.

Conditions in Other States.

In other states where conditions are not as ideal as here they now have pheasants in plenty. It is up to you, Mr. Hunter, to do your part to help the Commission protect them. Get busy. Your wardens will be in the field every day during the hunting season and for a considerable time before that, to see that each hunter has his license, and that the "Sooner" is cured in his selfish desire. Please help the wardens, remembering that they are working for you and not against you. We want to enlist the active cooperation of every man in Kentucky who has a hunting license in protecting your own game from the cheater. We want you to realize that it is you who are being cheated by the game hog, the pot hunter and the chap who hunts out of season without a license.

Our wardens are doing effective work. However, the state is large and unless the sportsmen and farmers report the infractions of the hunting laws either to the wardens or to the State Department, some violators are bound to escape.

Hunters Themselves Lose.

What we wish to impress upon the sportsman who takes out his license and obeys the law, is that every violator is cheating him. Those who set about to deplete the game supply unprofitably either for gain or through greed, or who hunt out of season, to some extent succeeds in robbing the licensed hunter of the benefits for which he spends his money in purchasing his license.

If the sportsman can get the idea clearly into their minds that the law is for their protection as well as for the protection of the landowner and the conservation of valuable food supply, and that the violators of game regulations are beyond the law, a cheater against whom every man's hand should be raised, it will not be long until we shall again see the fields and forests full of game and Kentucky affording some of the best field sport in the country.

Now, Mr. Hunter, won't you help by setting a good example and spreading the sentiment for obedience to the law wherever you go? Condemn the unlawful hunter and the pot hunter and try to show him the light. If he does not take kindly to your suggestions, report the violation of the law to the wardens in your county and the office of the Commission at Frankfort. Boost the game and thereby make more pleasure for yourself and at the same time increase the value of the license for which you pay. The money you pay for your license is your contribution towards the enforcement of the law and the propagation of game. Get behind your money with your personal influence and conditions are bound to improve.

Lawful to Kill.

Quail, rabbits, squirrels, woodcock, wild duck, wild goose, can be shot from November 15 to January 1.

Unlawful to Ship.

It is unlawful to ship quail, native pheasant, or wild turkey within the State of Kentucky at any time, but these birds, when lawfully killed and in possession of the hunter, may be carried by the hunter, or in the baggage cars, when properly marked. When shipping rabbits, squirrels, or wild ducks, within or without the state, the package should be plainly marked, giving the contents of the package, and the name and address of the consignee.

It is unlawful to ship any game out of the state, or the hides of fur-bearing animals, without clearly marking the package as above directed. To ship unmarked is in violation of the interstate laws, and is punishable in the federal courts by a heavy fine and imprisonment.

Remember that it is unlawful to ship either within or without the state, by freight, express, parcels post, or any common carrier, any quail, native pheasant, or wild turkey.

Now, Mr. Hunter, you will say if approached that you intend to get your license before hunting. It is necessary to purchase your license from the county clerk of the county in which you reside. There will be many hunters in the fields on the opening day, November 15. What would be the condition at your county clerk's office if you waited until November 14 to get your license? There would be congestion. You would stand in line many hours waiting your turn and then possibly go away without it. You had made your arrangements to go hunting early the next morning and would go afield without your license. Mr. Game Warden would happen along and you would be distressed and embarrassed. Why take a chance?

A LETTER TO SANTA CLAUS

PROTECT THE FUTURE.

There is only one way in which Kentucky can protect herself in the future from "possum-hunting," tobacco-bed scrapings and other acts of lawlessness. That safe and certain way lies through the careful upbuilding of every rural school in the state. Giving every child an education is not enough; make every child take an education, and the future prosperity of the state is absolutely secure. Allow even a small percentage of the children of to-day to grow up in ignorance and they become the law-breakers of the Commonwealth.

Protect the future welfare of every community with better school houses, with all the children in them, and peace, happiness and prosperity will become a trinity of power in Kentucky.

In this good year 1915 a man without an education is practically helpless. In 1916 his position will be worse and with each succeeding year it will grow even more difficult for him to earn a good living. The child that will grow into a man in 1925 is in school or out of school today. How many will there be in this helpless plight in 1925 will depend upon the schools and the school system of the state now.

Any druggist will receive your contribution to the United Charities Christmas Fund.

B. B. Sanders, of Caruthersville, will be in Hickman for the next two months buying corn for a Nashville firm. His wife will also spend a few weeks here after the holidays.

Jno. W. Harper, of Graves county, committed suicide Monday by jumping into a cistern. There was not enough water in the cistern to check Mr. Harper's fall and his skull was crushed when he struck the bottom.

Do you know the disappointment of an empty stocking on Christmas morning? Prevent such a catastrophe—do some real Christmas work—see local charities.

WHAT AILS THE BOY?

If the average father who wonders why his boy hates to go to school, would pay a visit to that self same school, he would understand perfectly. Why should the boy care to go to a small country school house that is uncomfortable? Why should the boy be anxious to attend a school where the teacher is underpaid and overworked? Why should he be interested when his parents are so little interested that they never darken the school house door?

Make the school attractive, arrange matters so that the teacher is neither underpaid nor overworked, show interest by visiting the school occasionally, and the average boy will not strive to stay away.

If every small community in the State of Kentucky is able to buy and run half a dozen autos, each one of them can afford a good school. The money paid for the machines is spent, but the money put into the schools would be invested in the future prosperity of the children and the state itself.

No one objects to giving money to build a fine church. Why should the building of a fine school house be a different proposition?

FIRE ENGINE BONDS SELL AT $387 PREMIUM.

A special meeting of the council was held last night for the purpose of opening bids for the city bond issue of $7,500 and bids on furnishing the city with a motor fire engine.

The bonds sold very satisfactorily—bringing a premium of $387 or a total of $7,887. The Hanchett Bond Co., of Chicago, were the best bidders, with a Cincinnati firm only $1 under them. Nine bids were received.

Four companies sent in bids on the engine. The council will meet again tonight to go over the specifications and will be assisted by Mr. Knox, of the Kentucky Actuarial Bureau. Specifications rather than price will govern the committee in the matter of deciding on a machine. Bids submitted were, as follows, which will give one an idea of the approximate cost of the engine:

Robinson Fire Apparatus Mfg. Co., $5800 to $7,445.

American La France Co., $6,500 and $5,600.

Seagrave Fire Engine Co., $5,700 and $6000.

Ahrens-Fox Co., $5,600 and $7,500.

The contract for this machine will be let at a meeting of the board next Monday. At the same time, the board will probably elect a fire chief from among the applicants for this position.

We might also add in connection with this matter that two fire companies have to be organized and the water company will be forced to enlarge several of their mains.

WAYS OF ERADICATING PEST

Injury From Tent Caterpillars May Be Prevented by Spraying With Arsenate of Lead.

Tent caterpillars come from an egg laid by a brownish moth of medium size. The eggs are deposited in bands around the smaller twigs of apple, wild cherry and other trees. They hatch the following spring, and the caterpillars begin feeding upon the young leaves.

When full grown, the caterpillars are about two inches long, somewhat hairy, and one form has a longitudinal white stripe in the center of the back. At this time they leave the tree and wander off singly to seek sheltered places where they spin their cocoons. Three weeks later the moths emerge and lay their eggs.

If a grower is spraying his fruit trees faithfully with arsenate of lead in any shape, this of itself will prevent injury from tent caterpillars, since any internal poison is fatal to them; or the tents may be crushed with the gloved hand when they can be reached; or they can be burned by a torch on the end of a pole; or they can be twisted out of their place by means of a wire brush made for the purpose, attached to the end of a long pole. These remedies are effectual only when the caterpillars are in their tents early in the morning, or in wet weather. Even on trees which are not ordinarily sprayed a single spraying of arsenate of lead, when caterpillars are observed, would probably stop their depredations.

In the case of the forest tent caterpillar the larvae can be destroyed when they collect in bunches on the trunks of trees. Prune off and destroy the twigs holding the eggs.

BEST OUTFIT FOR SPRAYING

Good Barrel Pump Will Last Lifetime and Can Be Used for Whitewashing, Disinfecting, Etc.

For commercial orchard work it is never advisable to purchase any spraying outfit smaller than a barrel pump. A good barrel will last a lifetime and can be used for purposes other than spraying, such as whitewashing, disinfecting, etc. When an orchardist has a sufficient number of trees to require five or six barrels of liquid for one spraying, it is advisable to purchase a tank holding 200 to 300 gallons with a double-acting sprayer; or better, if he can afford it, a gasoline power.

The pump should be brass lined to prevent corroding or rusting of the parts. The pump must have a sufficiently-large air chamber to keep the pressure uniform; one that will with comparative ease keep a pressure of at least 150 pounds on two leads of hose.

As the principal ingredient in many of the insecticides and fungicides is the fine material held in suspension there must be perfect agitation that will keep the liquid in constant motion. The nozzles must be the best that are suited to the occasion. Those of the bordeaux type are not very satisfactory in ordinary usage.

UMBRELLA TRELLIS IN FAVOR

two cross arms, the post usually being four-foot length. The cut shows such a trellis with the vines pruned. In this system the first and second season's growth is given up to getting strong canes trained to the top of the post.

Mulch Berries.

It will pay to put a heavy mulch of straw or other litter about blackberry and raspberry plants to conserve the moisture in the soil. To produce good crops, these plants must be supplied with abundant moisture during the bearing season.

STATE ROAD LAW IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

Frankfort.—Kentucky's Road Commissioner, Robert C. Terrell, who has successfully put into operation the good roads laws of Kentucky and for the past three years has been the head of the road department, was born near Bedford, Trimble county, Kentucky, in 1884. After finishing the common school of that county, he entered the State University of Kentucky and graduated from that institution in 1906, receiving the degree of bachelor of engineering, and was given the master's degree in civil engineering in 1908.

Immediately after receiving his degree in 1906, he took charge of the location of the Duck Fork extension of the Louisville & Atlanta railway, now a portion of the L. & N. system. In addition to locating the road, Mr. Terrell mapped and opened up a large coal field for the Kentucky River Coal & Coke Co., which was afterwards leased by the Big Hill Coal Co. of Pennsylvania. In June, 1907, after completing the work with the Kentucky River Coal & Coke Co., Mr. Terrell was employed by the Arkansas, Louisiana & Gulf Railway at Hamburg, Arkansas, as assistant engineer on twenty miles of construction, where he remained until its completion in the summer of 1908.

ROBERT C. TERRELL
Kentucky Road Commissioner.

Through Mr. Terrell's influence with the Board of Trustees of the State University of Kentucky, there was established the chair of rural and highway engineering in the Department of Civil Engineering of that institution. He was unanimously chosen professor of that chair. He immediately began the campaign to secure not only the undergraduate students in the course, but also arranged to have the practical road builders of the state to take short courses and attend lectures during the winter season. The course grew very popular, and many students were enrolled in both the two and four year courses for undergraduate students and large numbers of the county road men, as well as the county judges and magistrates matriculated for the lecture courses.

In 1912, when the Department of Public Roads was established by the General Assembly, Governor McCreary called Mr. Terrell from the chair of rural and highway engineering of State University of Kentucky and appointed him the first Commissioner of Public Roads of Kentucky. Mr. Terrell assumed his duties on July 1, 1912, and has untiringly given his time and attention to the upbuilding of the road system of the state. Through his efforts and the showing made by the department prior to the meeting of the General Assembly of 1914 was made possible the passage of the state aid road laws in Kentucky, which provide for intercounty seat system of highways and a five-cent tax, together with the license tax on automobiles to be spent for the construction of the state system of highways, the state paying one-half the cost and the county one-half the cost of such improvement.

Mr. Terrell, through his splendid corps of assistants and thorough organization, has had active supervision and charge of the preparation of the plans, specifications and estimates of cost and actual construction of more than one thousand miles of road, and has thoroughly demonstrated to the citizens of the Commonwealth of Kentucky the advantage of having roads constructed on scientific principles, and has made popular the new road laws and has been successful in securing the co-operation of the county officials throughout the state.

Mr. Terrell, when interviewed on the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been made this year, and that fully fifty per cent more work would be accomplished during the year 1916, as the county officers of nearly every county in the state have already signified their intention of taking their pro rata part of the state aid fund for the coming year, and many more counties are preparing to vote bond issues.—American, Nashville, Tenn., November 14, 1915.
